CASE IN POINT

Largest Beverage Manufacturer and Bottler in the World Uses Porter Logistics for Consolidated Atlanta Cold Storage and Warehousing

The Challenge

One of the largest beverage manufacturers in the world needed plant support for raw ingredients as well as finished products. The requirements were complex: some products required ambient storage while others required refrigerated while still others required frozen conditions. This customer already used Porter Logistics for dry warehousing and multiple others partners for their cold chain needs. Porter's client fervently wanted to consolidate both dry as well as the cold chain.

How we Helped

Porter Logistics dove right into the requirements, looking for adjacent real estate options within the necessary location footprint desired by Porter's client. After locating the Atlanta cold storage warehouse, Porter sprang into action – negotiating a lease, installing the necessary material handling equipment and infrastructure, and signing the contract within 90 days. Porter was able to consolidate their client's dry and cold materials into one location, generating enormous efficiencies for the beverage manufacturer. Executing complex multi-line orders via LTL, supporting plant manufacturing operations, as well as distribution of finished goods were all-in scope for this initiative.

Results

The client was extremely happy with the ability to consolidate their dry and Atlanta cold storage into one offering. Porter's ability to receive floor-loaded containers, execute multi-line case and bag picking, and offer full cold-dock services for refrigerated and frozen products was an absolute game changer – yield enormous efficiencies and increases in quality of services.

"Consolidating my dry and Atlanta cold-chain warehousing into one location has been a game changer - thank you Porter Logistics!"
